

Yellow warning
Snow

Between
04:00 Sat 16 Mar 2019 and
21:00 Sat 16 Mar 2019

A spell of rain and snow will continue but with disruptive snow mainly confined to hills.

What to expect

- Some roads and railways affected with longer journey times

Further details

Snow is continuing to turn to rain over southern Scotland but will last for longer to the north of the Central Lowlands.

A mix of rain and snow is likely at lower levels, with no more than a transient slushy covering on roads below about 100-200m. Around 1-4 cm of snow is more likely above 200-300m elevation, with perhaps more than 5 cm above 400 m.

 Medium likelihood of low impacts
